

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE 16

U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT
13 JULY 1981

Washington Whispers.

Central Intelligence Agency officials find only two leaks of secrets since introduction in 1980 of a system requiring the agency to report only to two committees in Congress rather than to eight as in the past. Both leaks are attributed to executive-branch officials, not senators or representatives.